

HEALTH Professions

A first-year learning community for students interested in a health science career.

- FALL semester examines how individuals interact with the health care system in America including gaps between dominant and marginalized communities.
- SPRING semester of this course will touch on specific people who experience healthcare disparities and/or explore biomedical ethics.

Students will:

- Learn to think critically about healthcare
- Discuss disparities in healthcare accessibility
- Analyze the effect of disparities for marginalized populations
- Present at the LEAP Spring Symposium

Fulfills 3 General Education requirements in 2 semesters: HF/DV/HF
